Course Overview

To speak of “sports as a social institution” is to look at sports in two slightly different ways. First, sports are shaped by social institutions—that is, sports are NOT isolated worlds entirely with their own internal rules and logic. Instead they are embedded within broader institutions such as race, gender, sexuality, the emergence of fantasy sports, the profit motive, etc.—all of which interfere with the presumed ultimate objective of winning or of sports-as-meritocracy. A sociological understanding of sports in this sense means understanding the different types of social meanings society invests in sports, and what consequences this has.

Second, sports are themselves institutions, which may be very local in nature—for instance, a variation of a game of kickball played only a few friends in one very specific neighborhood in the world; or global in scope, as in soccer (“football” to everyone outside the U.S.) during the quadrennial World Cup. If society shapes sports, sports also shapes society. Together, these two conceptual approaches will comprise an institutionalist understanding of sports that we’ll seek to build over the course.

Required Readings

There are two required texts plus a course reader. The two texts are:

- Eric Leifer, Making the Majors: The Transformation of Team Sports in America
- Andrei S. Markovits & Lars Rensmann, Gaming the World: How Sports are Reshaping Global Politics and Culture

Both of these texts are available at the ASUC Bookstore.

We will spend about four total weeks on these two texts. The balance of the course’s readings will come from a course reader, available at University Copy Services at 2425 Channing Way, two blocks south of campus in the arcade under the Durant-Channing garage.

Grading

Course grades will be determined by three components: two midterms and a final exam.

- Two midterms (30% each): Both midterm exams will be administered in-class. They will be short answer (one- or two-paragraphs responses per question) in format. The first will be given on Monday, September 24th, and the second will be on Monday, October 22nd. Both will occupy the full hour of class.
The first midterm will cover the first 4 weeks of course material, up through the section on Sports & Media. The second midterm will not be cumulative, but will cover the next 4 weeks of material through our section on “Moneyball”.

- Final exam (35%). The final exam will be cumulative. It will be administered during the university-designated final exam group period. Soc117 is in Exam Group 13, which goes on Thursday, December 13th, from 8-11 AM.

For all exams, you will be responsible for the corresponding readings, material from lecture, and appropriate class discussion. I will expect you to have completed readings prior to class and to come to class prepared to talk about them. Lectures will include some review of the readings where appropriate but will also significantly expand upon them.

The grading scale is as follows. ‘[’ means including, and ‘)’ means excluding, so ‘[83-87)’ for example means everything including 83 up to but NOT including 87.

I will use the “Assignments” tool/tab on the course bspace site to keep a record of your scores, so as midterm scores are released, make sure that what is on bspace matches what is on your actual returned paper exam. If there is a problem, report it immediately. Do not wait until the end of the semester to report an issue with either of the midterms.

There are no other discretionary considerations that factor in to the calculation of your final grade. As the course progresses, you can calculate your performance and what you need to do on subsequent graded assignments to get X grade exactly.

Lecture, Reading, and Assignment/Exam Schedule

The following schedule is based on the plan of covering two readings per week. Since we’re on a MWF schedule, the idea is to spend M and half of W on the first piece, and then the second half of W and all of F on the second. Occasionally we’ll spend only one day on a reading, and occasionally we’ll spend two whole days on a reading instead of only one-and-a-half. You must have the indicated readings completed prior to the class they are listed.

All readings except Leifer and Markovits & Rensmann are in the course reader.
