Development and Modernization

This seminar will provide an overview of the variety of theoretical perspectives that have sought to explain the difference in the levels of development characterizing countries in the Global North versus those in the Global South, as well as of the “development project,” itself. Particular emphasis will be placed on understanding the relationship that exists between the international economy and international actors, the state, and national classes, and the manners in which it conditions the course of agricultural transformation, industrialization, and democratization in the Global South. The impact of development on women, racial/ethnic minorities, and the environment will also be addressed. Finally, varied responses to the predominant model of development will be examined, including emigration and pursuit of a socialist model of development.

Course Requirements:
Written work will consist of one major paper. This paper can be either a research paper or a research prospectus that stems from the issues central to this course. Papers must be double-spaced and no longer than 20 pages (Font size 12, and 1" margins, please). A prose sketch of the paper must be submitted by 27 February; a detailed skeletal outline of the paper will be due on 16 April; and the final paper (to be described in class) is due by 12:00 PM on 11 May.

Course requirements also include participation in seminar sessions. In addition, students will be required to organize several of the weekly discussions.

Course Materials:
A reader of required articles has been put together for the course, which will be available through bcourses (these are indicated with an *). In addition, there are four required books, which can be purchased from ASUC Bookstore (or read on Reserve through Graduate Services in Doe Library). The required books are the following:
