Overview of Course Content:
Fear plays an increasingly important role in our society. We see it in our media and our politics. It affects our thoughts about climate change, COVID-19, and the future. We see its effects on our mental health and our relationships. As a result of this rise of fear in the 21st century, some sociologists have argued that we need a better sociological approach to understanding fear in society. In this class, we will explore the age of anxiety using sociological concepts to understand fear and anxiety and the roles they play in society.

As a sociology capstone experience, the course seeks to provide students with a partial experience of what graduate school level seminars are like—relying on student-led discussions on important reading material as well as individual projects that students will work on throughout the semester. Readings, discussion participation, and personal interest will be critical to creating a productive and successful learning environment!

The goals of this course are: 1) to expose you to a potentially growing field of sociology and its different arenas of application, 2) to provide a space for students to discuss and engage on these topics in social everyday practice, and 3) to support students in engaging in a senior capstone project that involves some form of sociological research.

Office Hours:
Feel free to come into office hours for anything, course or life related! Please sign up at the link at the top of the syllabus if you know in advance that you’d like to come in. If you do not sign up, you are still welcome to drop in, but I do sometimes step out of the office/Zoom call when there is no appointment to run a quick errand.

If office hours are full or you cannot make the times, you may email me to set up another time. If you have a very short question, you can try to drop by and sneak in before/after a student for a quick question (as not every student will use the entire 15 minutes they signed up for)—but be prepared to wait patiently as well.

Office hours can be done in-person (487 Social Sciences Building) OR online via Zoom (https://berkeley.zoom.us/j/99441395960).

NOTE: Attendance is mandatory in this class. Missing more than 2 classes will result in a penalty to your overall grade; missing 4 classes is an automatic fail for the course. No actual points are given for attendance (this is somewhat reflected in your participation grade), but attendance will be taken every class. To get credit for attending a class, you must not be more than 10 minutes late and must stay to the very end of the class; otherwise, it will be considered an absence. If you have problems with attendance due to an emergency, sports schedule, or health issue, please talk to me early in the semester to see if we can work something out so that you do not fail due to attendance.

If English is not your first language, or you have trouble writing in English, there are resources on campus to help in writing your papers.

1. Visit the Student Learning Center (SLC) on UC Berkeley campus. Check out their website and their writing resources at http://slc.berkeley.edu/writing
2. Look on the bCourses website for our class. I have posted some resources in a folder labeled “Writing Resources.” These are some rather thorough guides written specifically by and for the Sociology department.

Participation

This class is run somewhat like a graduate seminar and/or research seminar. This means while I do give lectures and discuss assignments, I also expect you to engage with the material and to be ready to share about your thoughts on the class readings. Memos will help structure our discussions, but you will be expected to take initiative with your learning process in this class!

Please come to class prepared to discuss the week’s reading and/or topic. Your participation during class is crucial to learning, understanding, and “Participation” does not mean simply speaking out a lot. The content, quality, and depth of your participation are just as important as how many times a week you speak. I do take notes and keep record of participation, including large group and small group discussions.

For those of you who may dislike participating in large groups or spontaneous participation, there are several options that I am happy to work out with you. If you are at all concerned about participation, please see me early in the semester in office hours to talk about this.

Reading Memo + Outline

During the first week of our class, we will assign students to different weeks of the course to write memos and outlines for the readings on the syllabus. The detailed instructions of the memos and short outline will be on bCourses. They will be relatively short reflections on the reading for that week, including a one-page single-spaced outline of the reading for that week.
The memo will consist of at least one example of how they see a key concept in the reading expressed in our society (e.g., in the student’s personal life, in the news, in online content, etc.). The week your memo is due, I will use your memo in class to help guide our discussion. In other words, you and your memo will act as our guide to the discussion for that week. I will ask you to share what you wrote in the memo as well as what questions you had in thinking about the reading.

Senior Capstone Project

This assignment is a large part of your grade, but it is broken down into many small assignments. Overall, the goal is to provide you with some hands-on social science research that will develop your interests while being fun and memorable—basically, I hope you learn something that you want to learn!

The first part of the project is a research question proposal where you will develop a clear, concise sociological research question about something you are interested in. The one limitation is that it should relate to the course’s topic of fear and anxiety in society.

The second part is a literature review. This is where you will do some broad-based reading trying to answer your research question through existing sociological studies. You will try to see what different scholars think about your research question and how they would approach it. This paper will require library research and skimming many academic articles.

The third part of your project is a research design proposal. You will choose between three designated and well-explained sociological methods: existing data research, content analysis, or in-depth interviewing. Each one will have slightly different requirements. Existing data research will require you to find statistical data on the key variables of your research question and analyze them. Content analysis will require you to choose and systematically gather content to analyze. In-depth interviewing will require you to reach out and interview different individuals about your topic area. In the proposal, you will discuss what you plan to do to gather data for your project.

The fourth part of the project is a data analysis memo which will consist of a short, preliminary analysis of the data you have collected so far. This will include presenting your primary data and providing a brief early analysis of it.

The fifth part is to present your preliminary ideas to the class! This will be done in our last class of the semester where we will break up into small groups and you will hold a “poster session” about your research and what you have found out so far. This will be done with your laptops utilizing a visual presentation (e.g., PowerPoint, Slides, etc.).

The final step is to write the final paper. The paper will include an introduction, literature review, methods section, data analysis or findings section, and a conclusion. It will argue what you found based on the data you collected and what you believe we can learn from your research.

Grading Scale for the Class:

A+ (98-100)
A (93-97)
A- (90-92)
B+ (88-89)
B (83-87)

Course Policies (detailed info also available on bCourses)

LATE ASSIGNMENTS ARE NOT ACCEPTED! The only exception is for approved DSP accommodations and documented extreme emergencies (e.g. hospitalization, death in the family, COVID-19 related issues, etc.). All assignments will all be “handed out” and completed through the bCourses website. There is a one-hour grace period where you can still submit your assignment even though it will be considered late. Late assignments, even assignments just a couple minutes late, are penalized up to a full grade (e.g. up to a 10% deduction). If you miss this grace period, you will be unable to get credit for your assignment and you will be given a 0 on it. Please be sure to turn things in on time and before the stated due date and time.

NOTE: The reason I have a strict policy on late assignments is because I am concerned about unknowingly participating in a system that privileges certain racial, cultural, socioeconomic, family background influences that may account for one student asking for an extension while others keep silent about their circumstances. In a rather sizeable class, I feel it is important to have a strict “no late assignments” policy.

- PLEASE submit your assignments early! Do not wait for the last minute, especially given the late assignment policy for the class, so please save us all some stress and extra work and submit things at least an hour in advance of the due date and time.
- On bCourses, you can submit assignments early and re-submit them (to override the submission) at a later date. They will not be graded until the due date passes. So submit assignments early to avoid last minute technological errors so that you at least get some credit in case of emergency.
- Back-up your work! Stolen laptops, broken laptops, etc. are a real risk of the technological era. If you encounter such a problem, no extension will be given. It is therefore your responsibility to back up your work so that you can still turn in the assignment in case a technologically related tragedy occurs.
- If you encounter an error in submission, please take a screenshot of the error that includes the date and time of the error (your computer’s date/time clock is good enough) and email your assignment with the screenshot attached to your reader and me. In order for your assignment to be accepted as on time, your reader and I must receive this email before the submission due date.
- It is your responsibility to make sure you submitted the correct assignment and that the assignment was fully submitted, so please after submitting your assignment, check to be sure that the correct document was successfully uploaded onto bCourses. If you submit the wrong assignment or if it was unsuccessfully uploaded, we have no choice but to give you a 0 on the assignment.
Disabled Students' Program (DSP)

If you are part of the Disabled Students’ Program (DSP) and require special accommodations, please try to make arrangements in advance—this will guarantee you access to your accommodations. If you do make arrangements last minute, we will try our best to still accommodate, but try to ask in advance, even if it’s just in case.

To ask for an extension or accommodation using your DSP letter, you must first be sure that your DSP letter allows for the accommodation you are requesting. Then, send an email with your DSP letter attached to me (the instructor). If you are asking for an extension, please suggest a reasonable due date (allowed by your letter) to turn in the assignment.

Please follow these instructions carefully. Over the years, DSP has expanded to include many more students, and teaching very large classes without GSIs can make it difficult to handle these cases—so please make our job easier by following these instructions!

Grading Philosophy:

I believe that the grade you get is the grade you earn. I also believe that your final grade in the course should reflect an accurate assessment of the entire body of work you submit for the class. If something unexpected or tragic occurs with one assignment (e.g. you do much worse on an assignment due to personal circumstances, you were unable to turn it in on time and received a 0, etc.), I will still evaluate the rest of your coursework to see what grade you deserve for the entire course—in other words, focus on the other assignments and show you deserve an A in the course in spite of one major slip-up. You will never receive a grade lower than what you earned by sheer point calculation, but you may receive a grade higher if your work proves it (e.g. improvement, exceptional final exam, etc.).

I review every grade submitted at the end of the course and will handle things like borderline grades, rounding, etc. based on the performance of your work as a whole. I even (sometimes) re-read your already graded work to see if you should be bumped up from a B+ to an A- if you are on the borderline. These are done for every student, regardless of whether you email me or not (to ensure a fair playing field for all my students), so there is no need to “advocate” for yourself—just focus on the work and prove you deserve (i.e. earn) the grade you are hoping for.
Re-grade Policy:

If you want a re-grade, please follow the following steps. You have two weeks after receiving your grade to initiate the beginning of this process. I do not do re-grades after this two-week cut-off (to avoid people asking for re-grades at the end of the semester because their grades are borderline).

1. Meet with me to discuss why you got the grade you got.
2. Write a cover letter to me that explains how you understand my perspective and why you still have an issue with the grade (what you thought was mis-graded).
3. I will re-grade your work (the entire thing) and whatever grade you get becomes the final grade (either higher or lower).

Keep in mind, I will have graded all the assignments in this class. I probably have a sense for how your assignment compares to other people in the class. But, at the same time, grading many assignments could allow for mistakes, so while that is possible, please have sober judgment over your own work and really consider my perspective. Regardless of how much time or effort you put into the assignment, if it simply did not meet the requirements or if you did not adequately communicate what was in your head, you may still have gotten a lower grade (keep in mind, I do not necessarily know how much time you spent on the assignment and I am not evaluating effort, but the expectation of the assignment).
Reading List and Semester Schedule

Readings should be completed before class the date they are assigned. All readings are available on our bCourses site. Assignments that are “handed out” are done so completely on bCourses and will be explained in class that day.

Most weeks have two assigned readings. The first one listed is generally a larger overview—for example, dealing with big picture or theoretical understandings of the topic for that week. The second one listed is generally more specific, like a case study or example of that topic area. Note this for the way you approach each reading.

Sensitive Material
At times this semester we will be discussing events and issues that may be disturbing, even traumatizing, to some students. If you ever feel the need to step outside during one of these discussions, either for a short time or for the rest of the class session, you may always do so without academic penalty. (You will, however, be responsible for any material you miss. If you do leave the room for a significant time, please plan to get notes from another student or see me individually)

Our discussions in class will heavily revolve around the readings, so please come to class with some thoughts, questions, ideas about them—you should be taking notes on each reading as well as jotting down your wonderings.
